LEAGUE GAME PREVIEW

V

The Bulls return to the Stockyard hoping to end a 3-game skid but will be buoyed by an improved overall effort vs the Tuatara. If the Bulls are able to increase a league worst offensive output while finding the physical defence from the early season (9th in FG% defence at 45%, and 3pt FG% defence at 36%) a run for the Top-6 will still be at hand.

Hoping to disrupt that strategy will be the Jets who, while winless, have shown a refusal to go down without a fight since completing their roster. The effort has been nice but results are the goal and with Robert Crawford (18 PPG) and Shane Temara (19 PPG) on the wing while Zane Najdawi and John Bohannon bolster the interior the Jets have enough to collect a few scalps, with the only remaining question being who's the first victim? The team that most imprints their preferred style of play on the game (the grindy physicality of the Bulls, the desire for space and pace of the Jets) will most likely end up the victor.- Casey Frank
